The Puerto Rico Blockchain Trade Association Announces 2022 series of Free “CryptoCurious” Workshops

San Juan, PR, February 9, 2022--- As part of its educational mission, the Puerto Rico Blockchain Trade Association (PRBTA), announced free virtual workshops for February 2022 on the fundamental concepts of blockchain and cryptocurrency topics. CryptoCurious online courses will be held in February in Spanish and English via Zoom, and will include:

February 14 & 15: Bitcoin: The Beginning

February 21 & 22: Ethereum & Smart Contracts

February 28 & March 1: What are NFTs?

PRBTA first announced CryptoCurious last October, as an initiative to provide free crypto education in Puerto Rico. Since its launch, this effort has thus far impacted over 500 people with first-hand knowledge. In their mission to continue offering free workshops, they have partnered with DLTx, a technology company dedicated to bridging distributed ledger technologies engaging in commercial business, physical infrastructure, and software services with the traditional economy.

“CryptoCurious’ success has been instrumental in delivering accessible and inclusive crypto education, free of charge to everyone interested in learning about these topics. We want to continue expanding on this initiative to those interested” said Keiko Yoshino, Executive Director for the Puerto Rico Blockchain Trade Association.

Registration for CryptoCurious workshops can be found on Eventbrite.
